
Business Profile

InWebOut mainly conducts IT business: making a website, translating a Japanese website into English, providing online cloud storage, making template files, supporting people who would like to be a YouTuber. Also, InWebOut runs a website named “Studying Abroad With Disabilities: SAWD” which consults and supports especially people with disabilities who would like to study abroad in the US.

Belief

InWebOut always seeks lots of possibilities and tries to challenge itself towards better and superior quality services since being established on May 6, 2016. Shuhei Onishi, CEO, has a severe disability, Progressive Duchenne Muscular Dystrophy, and uses a wheelchair. In spite of this difficulty, he graduated from a college in the U.S. and acquires many skills and specialist-oriented qualities along his journey. He hopes to provide his power for future endeavors. InWebOut holds his personal belief.

New Ideas

- Consulting and supporting people with physical disabilities who would like to study abroad by using the Internet video calling service from their house.
- Advising all businesses by experiences; finding and trouble-shooting problems out speedily.
- Connecting between clients who are working within different Industries; giving birth to something new.

Special Features

- Seminar
Studying abroad in the US regarding possibilities of people with disabilities by EducationUSA
August 8, 2018
- Television
Japan’s Disability Shame by 101 East - Al Jazeera
English
November 9, 2018

Strengths

The possibilities are infinite regarding the strengths of your endeavors. After all, the world is linked. InWebOut can do anything. These words are the strengths of InWebOut. If a client asks InWebOut to help, InWebOut will try to do something for that client.